

What to Watch This Week

November 1–8, 2025

Delicious Scoops of Entertainment & Celebrity News

IceCreamConvos.com
© 2025 Ice Cream Convos | All Rights Reserved

What to Watch This Week: November 1–8, 2025

Your ultimate guide to 33 new movies and shows streaming or hitting theaters this week.

Frens, the first week of November is overflowing with fresh releases! Whether you're in the mood for a heartfelt holiday romance, a jaw-dropping thriller, or a binge-worthy new series, this week's lineup brings something for every vibe. Grab your blanket, your snacks, and a comfy spot — it's time to press play!

November 1

Joy To The World (Hulu)

Lifestyle guru Joy Edwards has built her brand on perfection, but when a TV network wants to film her 'perfect' Christmas dinner, she scrambles to create the illusion. Enlisting her best friend to play her husband, she discovers that pretending might just lead to something real.

Why watch: A cozy holiday rom-com that delivers charm, laughs, and a reminder that imperfection is what makes life magical.

Terry McMillan Presents: His, Hers & Ours (Lifetime)

When two single parents find their teenagers secretly dating, they're forced to spend time together — and sparks fly. Their unexpected connection challenges their priorities, their children's feelings, and their ideas about second chances at love.

Why watch: Terry McMillan returns with a heartfelt look at family, faith, and finding love when you least expect it.

The Cut (Paramount+)

A retired boxer fighting for redemption steps back into the ring — but his obsession with glory begins to destroy everything he loves. What starts as a comeback story quickly becomes a cautionary tale about pride and purpose.

Why watch: Gritty, emotional, and powerfully human — this is the redemption drama boxing fans will be talking about.

November 2

I Love LA (HBO Max)

Rachel Sennott stars as Maia, a young Hollywood talent manager whose perfectly curated life starts to unravel when an old college frenemy resurfaces. Between love, ambition, and identity, Maia's journey is equal parts hilarious and painfully real.

Why watch: Witty, sharp, and unapologetically millennial — a love letter to messy friendships and chasing success in the city of dreams.

November 3

Crutch (Paramount+)

When Francois ‘Crutch’ Crutchfield’s adult kids move back home, his empty nest turns into a full house of chaos, comedy, and hard truths. Parenthood doesn’t end when your kids grow up — it just gets funnier.

Why watch: A hilarious and heartfelt look at family, forgiveness, and starting over when life throws you curveballs.

Dr. Seuss’ The Sneetches (Netflix)

A colorful reimagining of the beloved tale where star-bellied and plain-bellied Sneetches discover that kindness outshines difference. The message is timeless, the music joyful, and the animation dazzling.

Why watch: A feel-good family event that delivers laughter, love, and a beautiful lesson in equality.

In Waves and War (Netflix)

This eye-opening documentary follows three Navy SEALs navigating PTSD through experimental psychedelic therapy. It’s raw, intimate, and deeply human — an exploration of courage beyond combat.

Why watch: A moving documentary that will leave you thinking long after the credits roll.

Nice To Not Meet You (Prime Video)

Typecast detective actor Lim Hyeon-jun dreams of breaking free from his image just as journalist Wi Jeong-sin, demoted to entertainment reporting, enters his orbit. Their unlikely connection bridges ambition, vulnerability, and unexpected romance.

Why watch: A slow-burn K-drama filled with charm, chemistry, and second chances.

November 4

All’s Fair (Hulu)

A team of powerhouse female attorneys breaks from a male-dominated firm to open their own practice. Between scandalous secrets and courtroom showdowns, loyalty and love are tested in ways no legal code can define.

Why watch: Smart, fierce, and unapologetically bold — this is the kind of drama that redefines the rules of power.

Love & Hip Hop: Miami Season 7 (BET)

The Miami crew is back with new rivalries, music, and mayhem. Friendships are tested, alliances shift, and the stakes in love and fame have never been higher.

Why watch: If you crave drama, this season delivers it in abundance — with style, heat, and plenty of receipts.

Ice Fall (VOD/Digital)

A young Native American game warden captures a poacher who knows where a plane loaded with millions lies beneath a frozen lake. As greed and survival collide, trust becomes the rarest commodity in the cold.

Why watch: A chilling, high-stakes thriller that's as atmospheric as it is morally complex.

The Smashing Machine (VOD/Digital)

The true story of MMA fighter Mark Kerr, whose rise to fame came at the cost of his health, happiness, and identity. It's a brutal yet moving look at ambition and addiction.

Why watch: An unflinching portrayal of greatness, obsession, and the fight to stay human.

Squid Game: The Challenge Season 2 (Netflix)

A new round of contestants returns for bigger games and higher stakes in the ultimate test of courage and cunning.

Why watch: Reality competition meets cinematic spectacle — you'll be glued to your screen from start to finish.

Who Hired The Hitman? (ID)

This chilling true-crime docuseries unravels the shocking stories of real-life murder-for-hire plots and the people who carried them out.

Why watch: Perfect for true-crime junkies who love jaw-dropping twists that prove truth is stranger than fiction.

November 5

Tyler Perry's Finding Joy (Prime Video)

Shannon Thornton stars as Joy, a fashion designer who follows her crush to Colorado only to discover that destiny has other plans. Stranded in a snowstorm, she finds purpose, faith, and love in unexpected places.

Why watch: A heartfelt holiday story that blends laughter, love, and a little bit of Tyler Perry magic.

Fantastic Four: The First Steps (Disney+)

Set in a '60s-inspired retro-futuristic world, Marvel's First Family faces a cosmic threat while struggling to balance heroism and home life.

Why watch: A bold, stylish reimagining of a beloved classic with action, humor, and heart.

There you have it, Frens — 33 new titles to keep your queue overflowing this week! Whether you're streaming from the couch or catching a theatrical release, there's something here for every mood. Drop down in the comments and tell me what you're watching first, and be sure to visit IceCreamConvos.com for more delicious scoops of entertainment and celebrity news.

